

PHILOSOPHY OF ELECTRO-HOMOEOPATHY

INTRODUCTION:-

Electro Homoeopathy is separate medical system of treatment. Electro homoeopathic system of medicine is based on scientific principle and Electro-Homoeopathic harmless natural and is new system of medicine. This system is quite different from Allopathic, Ayurvedic, Unani, Homeopathic, Naturopathy System. This new pathy was discovered in 1865 by Dr. Count Ceasre Mattie of Italy on the basic of principles of complexa-complexis-curanter. This principle based the blood and lymph life fluid (if the vitiation condition of blood or lymph or both is cause of disease). The remedies of Electro-Homeopathy are prepared by the scientific process called the spagyric way commonly as "COHOBATION" method in which the living energies of the essence obtained from the plant. The remedies have curative capacities to regulate the blood and lymph and also to keep them purified, only non-poisonous plant are used for preparing medicine under this system. Alcohol or other poisonous matter is not used in preparation of these remedies. Hence there is no side effect on the Human body, any or discomfort can easily and quickly be controlled.

That the system of Medicine mainly function a preventive on the principles of human organization and is entirely composed two life fluids such as blood and lymph. The health and disease are dependent on such life fluid.

The electro-homeopathic remedies are prepared from vegetables kingdom on the specific process called spagyric way which are introduce by Paracelsus and Dr. Von Hellmont. These remedies have maximum curative capacity and the capacity to regulate the lymph and blood also keep them purified.

What is electro-homoeopathy?

Electro Homoeopathy is formed from 3 words-

Electro- energy

Homoeo - similar / equilibrium

Pathy - suffering / medical system

Electro Homoeopathy is a plant oriented system of herbal medicine. The electro Homoeopathic remedies purify the lymph & blood systems of the human body.

What is electro?

The name Electro Homoeopathy comes from the electro (energy) context extracted from the plant & the way this energy is extracted & combined with human being.

Plant can stored energy in his body by the process of photosynthesis.

Electro is relating to combination form of-

E - Energy

L - Lymph & blood

E - Enzymes

C - Combination

T - Treatment

R - Remedy

O - Organization of the whole body.

Why the name Electro Homoeopathy?

Electro Homoeopathy is a name given by the great scientist C.C. Mattei. 'Electro' means energy which collect from plant by the spagyric process. 'Homoeo' means equilibrium between blood & lymph. & 'Pathy' means medical system.

Who discovered this system?

The Italian noble Count Ceasre Mattei discovered these remedies in the later part of the 1800s in Rocchetta, Bolgona, Italy. Under the influence of the philosopher 'Paolo Costa', Count Ceasre Mattei was encouraged to devote his time & wealth to the service of humidity. He was elected as a member of the Roman parliament but soon abandoned political life & gave himself up entirely to medical studies. He acquainted himself with the researches of the illustrations Hahnamann, discoverer of Homoeopathy. Being a herbalist himself, he prepared these remedies from herbs 7 named them electro-homoeopathy medicine. After mattei had completed his experiments, he subjected his remedies to severe & numerous tests. Between 1865 & 1867, more than 20,000 patients were treated under the supervision of Dr. Coli & Dr. Conti. In 1869 the pope opened a ward in the hospital of Sant Teresa at Rome where the remedies could be tested more fully. The results were astonishing.

History of electro-homoeopathy

ABOUT THE HISTORY

PARACELSUS (1493 – 1541)

Paracelsus was one of the most important Renaissance naturalists. Paracelsus full name is: Theophrastus Bombastus Von Hohenheim 1493 - 1541. He put forward the view that disease resulted from external environmental forces. He also believed that plants and natural substances held the key to healing and embraced the 'like can cure like' principle. One of his ideas, known as the Doctrine of signatures, was that the appearance of a plant, or the substances it contained, gave an idea of the disorders it could treat. As a youth Paracelsus worked in the nearby mines as an analyst. This gave him the background for his future work in chemistry and alchemy that, doubtless, laid the foundations of his later remarkable discoveries in the field of homoeopathy and Electro-homoeopathy.

Count Cesare Mattei (1809-1896)

Electro-Homoeopathy is the name given to a new system of medicine discovered by a famous Italian Count Cesare Mattei in the later part of the 1800's. (Count Mattei, the founder of Electro-Homoeopathy, was born on the 11th January in the year of 1809

^m Bologna City in Italy. He belongs to one of the noblest families of learned town of Bologna.

After having studied natural science, he gave himself up to anatomy, physiology and pathology. Then more exclusively to chemistry and botany, after long and patients research following a method of his own, he discovered how to extract from certain plants the active principles which, alone or combine, form the agent in the new materia medica. Numerous and prolonged experiments upon the animal economy, experiments made first of all upon the dogs, have demonstrated the curative power of his remedies upon the organism, and at the same time have proved that they can never produce the slightest morbid alteration either in the organs or their functions.

He believed in the, famous Paracelsus who introduced law of similar. Thus convinced simultaneously of their immense utility and of their perfectly innocuous character, the count has applied to them with all confidence to all of the human beings. Further, in order to observe closely in numerable cases of disease, and the better to study the effect of these remedies, he held in his mention at Bologna, for more than ten years, public and private consultations in the presence of physician and surgeons who had attached themselves to him the purpose of being present at the sitting. It may be added of high person ages of all nations, physicians and even large medical bodies. But undoubtedly the German founder of Homoeopathy Hahnemann (1755-1843) and his doctrine have none the less influenced Mattei's mind in his patients researches, leading principle trying to investigate the immediate effects of remedies and bring them into practical service according to the familiar rule. On the other hand, he borrowed from Paracelsus the process of preparing the vegetable substances by means of a more or less complicated mode of fermentation, called "cohobation", and also the final combination of a number of ingredients with similar or supplementary effect to form a complex medicinal unity.

(Mattei had written his first book in 1874 in Italian language, which was then published in other languages. He has applied himself in his lifetime to the discovery of Materia Medica capable of modifying; not only the manifestation or symptoms of disease, but also their principle, or to speak better their first cause. It is by means of a theory the simple, with curative agents which he called Electricity in the remedies (Electro-Homoeopathy), so elementary that everyone may cure himself and his medicine is certainly the medicine of the future.

(He died on 3rd of April 1896 at the magnificent castle of La Rochetta, situated in the heart of the Apennines). If there are but few honest hearts in this world, there is still enough remaining to bless his memory. During Mattie life time when the Count Mattei aged in 1887 he handed over all his work to his adopted son Mario Venturoli Mattei. Later on after the First World War Mattei remedies were stopped to export from Italy, then V. Mattii made the agreement with the German Pharmist and Theodore Karuss to sell mattei remedies via Engel Apotheker Regensburg in Germany. This System later on become more popular & recognized than ever by his disciple Theodore Krauss.

Theodore Krauss (1864-1924)

The German practitioner Theodore Krauss (1864-1924) made a notable contribution to electro homeopathy medicine and JSO Spagyric medicine which is based on his method. At the age of 56 and after his key experiences with pharmacist Johannes Sonntag established "JSO komplex Heilweise", an exhaustive body of information.

Count Mattei in the early year of 1880 set up Consortium for electro Homoeopathy for the sale and promotion of his remedies in Regensburg. In the year 1883 the Consortium was transferred to the Engel Pharmacy in Regensburg for selling the remedies. The Consortium remained responsible for publication of the literature and assistance for these remedies to the 7000 members of the electro homeopathic practitioner. About two year later, Theodore Krauss joined the Consortiums for electro Homoeopathy and remained there in contact with Count Mattei till the year 1890. But after the death of Mattei in 1896, the Theodore Krauss took over the Consortiums for electro Homoeopathy; later on he expanded the system.

In the First World War the supplies from Italy were missing between the years 1914 to 1918. The first original medicines under the license were after-produced in the scientific direction of Krauss and Dr. med. Johannes in the same direction as the Mattei method and his system. The system later established by Theodore Krauss and became known as Electro complex Homoeopathy, which developed up to today and is known as JSO komplex Heilweise (JKH).

After Theodore Krauss death his work was continuously moving forward and his first book published back in 1920 on electro homeopathy has published its 14 edition till today in Germany. Following that, Spagyric had an official place in Europe and in the German Pharmacopoeia.

Carl Friedrich Zimpel (1800-1878)

In the nineteenth century, the German physician Carl Friedrich Zimpel, M.D., Ph.D. (1800-1878), began a new production of spagyric medicaments. This widely travelled and learned man had originally been an engineer. He devoted himself late in life to the study of medicine and acquired a doctorate in philosophy and medicine. He was awarded the Prussian gold medal for art and science and was an honorary member of the Mineralogical Society of the University of Jena. In 1849, he was established himself in London as a homeopathic physician. Zimpel devoted himself intensively to the study of the works of Paracelsus and Glauber. At the age of 70 and after his key experiences with Count Cesare Mattei (1809-1896), he published book on the subject. Gradually, he developed an important production, known today as Zimpel method which is also descried in German Pharmacopoeia [HAB] a high level, internationally known manufacturing Pharmacopoeia, whose products are today available in many countries of the world. In the meantime, many classical texts have been reprinted, in connection with which the attitude of the publishers vacillates strongly. Available, for instance, are the works of Paracelsus, Basilius Valentines, Glauber, Van Helmont, Andreas Libavius, and others.

How Electro Homeopathic Medicines act

1. They tone up the brain and nerves by which the bodily process are controlled and strengthen the organs of digestion.
2. The medicines supply food for the red blood corpuscles of the blood and nourish the white corpuscles of the blood and lymph.
3. They furnish useful elements to the plasma of the blood, and they provide nutriment for the cells of which the tissues are built.
4. They promote the expulsion through the skin and other channels morbid and superfluous substances which interfere with the health of the body.
5. They give to the blood and lymph, and more particularly to the leucocytes, which are found in these fluids such additional vigor, vitality and enables them more successfully to attack, weaken, neutralize, destroy and expel the bacilli and other disease producing germs which invade the organism.
6. They do not simply cure a particular disease for which they are prescribed, but at the same time do much good to constitution of the patients who use them.
7. They are palliatives as well as curatives.
8. Thus they cure cent per cent diseases whether acute or chronic, surgical or nonsurgical of male, female and children.
9. They cure even the so called incurable diseases such as Leprosy, Tuberculosis, Gangrene, Gout, Paralysis, Hydrocephalus, Cancer, Carbuncle, Fistula, Scrofula etc. without operation successfully and never produce drug diseases.
10. They cure all infectious diseases and poisoning cases with certainty and can be used as prophylactics in epidemics.

In Short we can say that they work on the principle that diseased organisms are far more sensitive than healthy organisms. Much like the area of skin around a cut or a graze is more sore and tender than its surrounding areas.

A remedy is never given to just remove the symptoms from the body, but to work wholly on the disease and remove its cause. It therefore works on the body as a whole.

Each remedy is derived from the active enzymes of several plants. When you take this complex remedy it completely covers and controls the body. It will then move through the body via the blood and lymphatic systems and target only those areas that require it. Once the diseased part is sufficiently saturated with the remedy, it stops absorbing it. When all the parts of the body have been healed and a healthy balance restored, the medicine itself is no longer absorbed. Therefore, there are absolutely no risks of over-dosing, side effects or drug dependency.

Electro Homeopathic remedies purify the lymph and blood systems and can find and destroy the gravest of disorders. They can also help prevent disease by keeping the body pure and giving it a healthy balance.

Note: The magical and marvelous operation of these remedies is a perpetual surprise even to those who have long used them. And the simplicity of their administration brings the healing art within reach of all who care to devote to it in moderate amount of thought, study and observation.

Principle of Electro homoeopathy

In sick person, the body fluids, lymph & blood become polluted and all the parts become abnormal state, which is why the disease develops in the body. Electro Homoeopathy is system of dynamic form of healing force extracted from the plants. It preserves and controls the organism Lymph and Blood, consisting of atoms, molecules, cell tissues, organs etc. by purifying them and returning them back to the normal state. The sick person recovers speedily and completely.

The proving of remedies

Electro homoeopathic remedies work on the principle that diseased organisms are far more sensitive than healthy organisms and change the condition of the bodily fluids. A remedy should not be given to remove the symptoms of the body but to work on the cause of the disease.

BASIC PRINCIPLES OF ELECTROPATHY: COMPLEXA – COMPLEXIS – CURANTUR

The principal holds that the body is of complex structure and only complex remedies for the complex disease will prove worthy. Body constituent of nature have united to frame up the body. There are different organs introducing the main unit of each cell together to form a tissue – and tissue to form an organ, several organs unite together from a human body so it is a complex process. Therefore the disease which invokes will be complex. A complex remedy will cover up all the areas, which have been effected. The principal of this medical science is “complexa–complexis–curantur” which means that complex disease is cured through complex medicine. The aims of the principal being that our body is a complex build up. So only complex mixture remedy for complex disease will prove worthy.

CURANTUR

The drug treatment that gives relief or recovery from disease or to correct a harmful or troublesome situation is a process or method of Curantur. To restore the health with soundness and normality by preparing the medicine through the process of combination brings the recovery, is curantur.

Electro-Homoeopathy has four fundamental laws

LAW OF POLARITY

TEMPERAMENT

LAW OF DOSOLOGY

SELECTION OF REMEDY

LAW OF POLARITY: The treatment is also based on law of polarity. Our body also has positive and negative points. The positive and negative points if kept in steady state would help in removing disease. There is also positive and negative charges in the body. The right portion of the body is positive and left is negative. The attraction of electro-homeopathy medicine is also based on the law of polarity. With the purification of blood and lymph the imbalance of positive and negative disease, force is brought in equilibrium, thus the disease will be cured completely)

In Electro homoeopathy, using electricity medicines as externals, is based on law of polarity.

Polarity in Electro homoeopathy explain minute electric charges of human body.

The law of polarity was first demonstrated by Dr. Charazain & M. Declé in 1886.

There are two charges [positive, negative] balanced equally in our body.

Right half of the body, face and trunk: feet, palm has negative charges.

Left half of the body, face and trunk has positive charges.

Inner part contains negative whereas outer part contains positive charges.

In mid line of body from top of the head to pubis, there is alternatively positive & negative charges. [Neutral]

If any disease appear in the body, it will alter the charges.

If positive pole of magnet apply over positive part of body produces contraction of muscles.

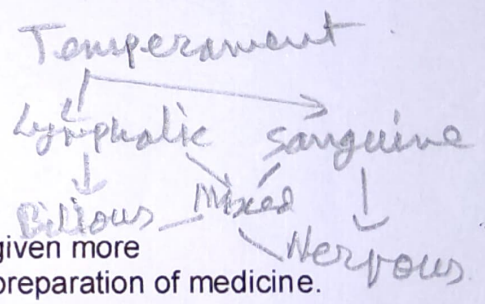

If negative pole of magnet apply over negative part of body produces contraction of muscles.

If apply negative pole magnet to positive part or positive pole magnet to negative part produces relaxation of muscles.

Absolutely the same phenomenon are produced by application of electricity medicines.

TEMPERAMENT: (Temperament or constitution is the characteristic feature of human body. In electro homoeopathy, the treatment is based on temperament. Before choosing a right medicine for a patient, an electro homoeopathy doctor must be known patient's temperament. Dr. C.C. Mattei's medicine specifically acts on temperament based. According to him, the causes of disease is alteration of blood & lymph.) So his treatment is also based on blood & lymph. If the patient belongs to lymph, he used scrofoloso group of medicine. If the patient is blood prone, he gave angioticos.

Human being contain mainly 2 types of temperaments;
1. Lymphatic
2. Sanguine.

We want to give more importance for nature of person for selecting correct medicine. Because Dr. C.C. Mattei had given more concentration to temperament than cause of disease during preparation of medicine. He prepared medicine on that basis only. i.e., Blood acting remedies & Lymph acting remedies. He knew sanguine persons mostly suffer from blood related disorders & lymphatic persons from lymph oriented disorders. The basic principle of electro homoeopathy is to purify lymph & blood. Dr. Mattei also explained another nature called mixed temperament. If patient suffer from both blood & lymph disorders for a long time, he may turns into mixed type. So mixed type of persons have both blood & lymph characters. Temperament is different from person to person. It can be easily recognized by Electro homoeopathic physician. Some eh doctors fails to find out patient's temperament before selecting medicines. Just they choose medicine on the basis of symptoms/causes of diseases. It's not a right way to treat the cases successfully through electro homoeopathy. Some doctors feel it as so difficult but there is no difficult. The temperament may be changed in same person under some circumstances. The patient's original constitution is greatly changed in state of shock/consumption of alcohol / use of strong drugs. Normal metabolism means constructive & destructive process are quiet well. So metabolic process is very essential for life. These metabolic activities is maintained by 2 vital fluids called blood & lymph. If any alteration is in blood & lymph, our bodily functions will be disturbed greatly. It may prevents nutrition and fails to protect the body.

Finally, disease or morbid growth may be the result.

So electro homoeopathy will be given only after confirmation of temperament.

How can identify temperament easily?

There are five types of constitution identified among peoples.

1. LYMPHATIC TEMPERAMENT.

Lymphatic temperament persons have the following features.

- A. They are usually obese, looking fair, fatty and flabby with general tendency.
- B. Their activities are very slow.
- C. They don't like cool environment.
- D. Cold items easily alter their health.
- E. They frequently suffer from respiratory complaints esp; cold, cough, sneeze, etc.
- F. They also have digestive upsets & glandular problems.
- G. They are more likely to spend their times in sleep.
- H. Their speech is slow & low volume.
- I. Hair is thin & sparse.
- J. Less hunger.
- K. Pulse is slow.
- L. Blind piles.
- M. Hands & feet are cold.
- N. Skin disease esp. boils.
- O. Passive congestion.
- P. Fat deposition.
- Q. Leucorrhoea & scanty menstruation.
- R. Joint pain.
- S. Muscles are loose.
- T. Lack of R.B.C.s and excess of W.B.C.s
- U. soft hair and the person has a tendency to bad food habits and fast life.

Note: scrofoloso / linfatico group of medicines are the right choice for lymphatic persons. If patient presence with any of above features and fails to correct in time, he may change into mixed type. When lymph is slightly disturbed, scrofoloso is enough to balance it. When the lymph circulation is greatly disturbed [i.e., mixed state], canceroso must be added as supplementary medicine. Because in this state, scrofoloso is not enough to restore patient. But scrofoloso acts as principle remedy. Generally for lymphatic persons especially in asthma, dry globules are highly effective than liquid form. To stimulate all the bodily functions, RE can be used.

• Sanguine temperament –

- A. Having a healthy red color,

B. Ruddy, a sanguine complexion.

C. Easily gets nervous and tendency to hemorrhage.

D. Inflammation, sinusitis, and migraine.

E. Mostly suffer from brain disease.

F. May collapse with hypotension or hypertension or stinging in the ears.

G. Vital energetic circulation of blood, well-nourished organs.

Mixed temperament –

A. This type of patient suffer both the characteristics of lymphatic and sanguine constitution.

B. The mixed constitution generally the disease of glandular tissue, glandular organs cellular tissue are found, because of dysfunction of the lymph and blood and insufficient excretion of waste matter of the metabolism, and consequently degeneration of tissue, suppuration of gland, tumors are formed.

• Nervous temperament –

This type of patient are easily distinguished for irritation in all negative condition. Any fear may bring paralysis and secondary amenorrhea may produce nervous shock. Insufficient nourishment to the nerves for example in 'neurasthenia' condition is found.

• Bilious temperament –

A. Suffering from or caused by some trouble with the bile or the liver leading to jaundice.

B. Loose motions.

C. Green diarrhea.

D. Cirrhosis of liver.

E. Obstruction of biliary duct.

F. Bitter taste of tongue.

G. Grey hair are found in bilious temperament.

LAW OF DOSOLOGY

Electro homoeopathy is a medical science of treating the constitution of the person. It is based upon the concept of three elements salt, sulphur and mercury which is found in our body and whose imbalances leads to the "Vitiation of Blood and Lymph". To restore this imbalances, spagyric vegetable essence is provided to the sick person. The line of treatment is followed by mean of constitutional remedy, followed by the organic remedy which often followed by the palliative remedy. The diagnose done by mean of IRIS study.

There are four phases/conditions of the tissues,

- 1. Acute
- 2. Sub-Acute
- 3. Chronic
- 4. Degenerative

And there is the rule given by the Mattei to select dose as per the following:

- 1. "Greater the severity of the disease, the smaller should be the dose".
- 2. "The More dilute the remedy, the more often it must be taken".

In the language of mathematics we can say dose is inversely proportional to the severity of the diseases (i.e. Acute –Sub acute-Chronic-Degenerative)

It is, frequently, proper to give several remedies to the patient; they must not be mixed, nor given at the same time, but alternated by giving, one part of the day, one of the other part of the day. Tubercles of lungs, for instance, require the use of anti-cancerous and pectorals; if there is a spitting of blood, a third remedy is added, chosen from the anti-angioticos.

The homoeopaths seek the remedy after the symptoms and form that the malady assumes, and say: for dropsy such a remedy; for convulsions, such another remedy .This is not the method of electro-homoeopathy; for, the same forms of disease may arise from various causes. Thus, convulsions occasioned by worms, could not be treated by a remedy which rectifies the circulation and vice versa. Every dropsy should not be cured by one and the same remedy; that which cures dropsy of the belly, would not be suitable to dropsy of the heart or of the ovaries. But, in each of these cases, the remedy must be used, which an elective action on the viscera has become the seat of the effusion.

The action which each remedy, applied to the exterior on the economy, is the same with a degree of difference, as the action of the same remedy, taken internally; a congestion of the liver, for example, will be more quickly subdued, if an external treatment is added to the internal, either by compresses or unction's of the same remedy, as given internally.

For the same reason, a diminished blood vessel or an aneurism, will be more promptly relived, if compresses or unction's are applied to the affected part, during the internal treatment.

If medicine does not work?

When no effect is obtained from a remedy, or the effect is slow in showing itself, one of the three following things is certain;

- a) Either that the diagnosis is erroneous
- b) The remedy consequently badly selected
- c) The dose is wrong or not compatible to the severity of the disease.

The effect of the remedies cannot fail, on condition that they are properly given and according to the rules of prescription.

LAW OF SELECTION OF REMEDY

At first confirmed with patient's temperament. Then should be diagnosed the cause of disease and confirm that which organs are affected. Then select a functional remedy (scrofoloso group) and an organic remedy(canceroso group), then should be select other group of remedy and complementary remedy.

*Perfect
Then select the remedy for the patient.*

DESCRIPTION OF THE REMEDIES

- Scrofoloso remedies, act on the scrofulous disorders and the metabolism.
- Linfatico remedies act on both systems of lymph, and blood especially the white corpuscles.
- Angioiticos remedies, which act on the blood vessels the arteries and the veins, and the circulatory system.
- Canceroso remedies, act on cellular construction and the chronic degeneration of Lymph.
- Febrifugo remedies, act on the fevers and all types of intermittent diseases, as well as disorders of the spleen and liver.
- Vermifugo remedies act on the intestines, but also on the other parts of our organism, and then also destroy all worms.
- Pettorale remedies, act on the respiratory system and bronchial tubes.
- Venerio remedies have a general constitutional effect.

Electricity's or Fluids

- Red Electricity is an arterial and nerve stimulant. This increases the vitality of the body.

- Blue Electricity has tonic effects on the circulatory system, when used in a diluted form it calms the organs which is over stimulated.
- Green Electricity promotes venous system and helps with chronic diseases and arthritic conditions.
- Yellow Electricity relaxes muscular or nervous tension, diminishing organic function and excitement.
- White Electricity exerts a gentle, calming influence over the nervous system.
- APP water for skin keeps the skin fresh and smooth as cosmetic effect.

Advantages of Electro Homeopathic Remedies -

1. These remedies are all extracted from plants, having energetic properties. 2. They produce energy in the body; its action is gentle and sometimes instantaneous, but more generally gradual of such a nature that the results can only be perceived after some minutes.
3. They correct the deficiency or excess to natural proportions and recover the disease speedily, gently, completely and permanently.
4. They do not simply cure the particular disease for which they are prescribed, but at the same time good to the constitution of the patients who uses them.
5. The true remedy gives the extra something, which the body needs. They are non-poisonous and do not create drug disease or leave any bad effects on the body.
6. It is not extremely facilitated and simplified in this way, in the most complicated illness as well, but also it is more economical of what is so important in the present period of necessity.
7. It is especially adapted for universal use as household remedies. No mother dread her child's life has been endangered because she has taken some of the medicines in error, nor need she ever be haunted by the fear, so often experienced by those who give bromides and other hurtful drugs that may turn out to be worse than the disease.

Electro homoeopathy medicines purify the blood and lymph and gives amazing result on the human body in many cases which are said to be incurable in other branches of medicine.

PROBABLE DISEASE

As per Count Cesare Mattei, there are three constitution around the world the people born with:

- a) Lymphatic
- b) Sanguine (Haematogenic)

c) Mixed

What is a Constitution?

The constitution is the product of the interaction between the mental, emotional and physical being of a person. Scientifically we can define the constitution as; the product of physico-emotional manifestation, which results from latent or active endogenous, hereditary factors. The development of these factors is dependent upon genetic regulation. The constitution is the sum total of all inherited characteristic - the Genotype.

General disease tendencies to the person born as Lymphatic constitution:

- Disturbance of the lymphatic system
- Catarrh of the mucous membranes in the upper respiratory tract
- UTIs
- Tendency to develop stomach ulcers
- Hyperuricaemia - elevated uric - acid levels, rheumatic and allergic tendencies
- Increased pyrexia
- Heart pathologies
- Ears, nose, and throat disorders

General disease tendencies to the person born as Sanguine (Haematogenic) constitution:

- Disturbance of the Blood plasma - Dyscrasia
- Deficiency of mineral and trace elements - cofactors and catalysts
- Increased tendencies to metabolic disease
- Diabetes mellitus Type 2
- Sickle - cell anemia
- Sub-acute disease processes with degenerative tendency
- Low fever activity, but when fever occurs then more pathological valuation - according to Hauser.

General disease tendencies to the person born as mixed constitution:

- Disturbance in the Liver-Gall bladder system (Biliary tendencies)
- Digestive disorders because of genetic enzyme deficiency.
- Increased tendency to intestinal immune deficiency – Dysbiosis
- Increased tendency to cramps - Magnesium issue
- Circulatory disorders
- Blood sugar tendencies
- Ferrum chromatosis
- Count Cesare Mattei discovered three constitutional remedies Anti-Scrofuloso (for Lymphahtic Temeprament) Anti -Angiotic (for Sanguine temperament) and Anti-canceroso (for Mixed temperament)

Experiments shows if a person belong to respective temperament of lymphatic, sanguine or mixed and use the above said remedies as the preventive mode for his/her constitution than the tendencies of the related diseases become very less and person feel healthy always at constitution level (which act as the land for the germination of the symptoms of diseases).
